

6th ANNUAL EXECUTIVE CONFERENCE & EXPO

MARINELOG
TUGS &
BARGES

May 12-13, 2009
Stamford Marriott
Stamford, Conn.

MARINELOG TUGS & BARGES

One of the topics of discussion will be hybrid propulsion for tugs. Shown is Foss Maritime's Carolyn Dorothy, the world's first hybrid green assist tug.

Marine Log's Tugs & Barges Conference & Expo, now in its sixth year, will once again offer insight into the dynamic coastal tug and barge market. Here's a glimpse at some of the topics we will be covering:

- Stricter emissions regulations are on the horizon, both on the state and federal level. What can owners do to comply?
- What new opportunities for coastal shipping routes are being created by the U.S. Maritime Administration's push on Marine Highways development?
- One of the biggest issues facing marine transportation companies is where is the next crop of mariners going to come from?
- The economic meltdown has rattled investors and cast a pall over the markets. What does this mean for financing? Is there capital available to fund your newbuild plans?

See the accompanying program for more details on the topics this conference will address and on the industry professionals participating in the discussion.

The conference

The registration fee is $795 per person. This includes all conference sessions, the expo, and all social functions, as well as online access to the conference proceedings.

The expo

A key component of the event is a tabletop expo, with technology and services on display from major suppliers to the tug and barge market.
